Spend a week or two in August learning Estonian language in Tartu!

The Estonian course, which can boast an impressively long tradition and is open for younger and older people, beginners and advanced learners, is taking place at the University of Tartu for the 22nd time!

This year the dates are 30th of July to 3rd of August and if there is enough interest, also 6th of August to the 10th of August. If you would like to, you can take part in the courses both weeks as the material and activities differ.

Registration: until 15th of June via the Association of Estonians in Sweden.

- The course is divided into 3 learning groups based on language skills (testing takes place on the spot on the first day before lessons).
- Our teachers use communicative teaching methods, aiming to develop both oral and written language capabilities in realistic situations. Authentic and appropriate texts, movies and other materials are used in lessons.
- In addition to in-class activities, those who wish are welcome to participate in the cultural part of the programme which includes an outing to a summer theater or a museum, as well as language cafes several times a week after regular classes. We encourage all participants to use what they have learned outside of class!

The course is organized by the University of Tartu and the Association of Estonians in Sweden.

Additional information and registration via the website of the Association of Estonians in Sweden: www.sverigeesterna.se.